

Leave to remain with 'No Recourse to Public Funds'

A guide for immigration practitioners preparing a 'change of conditions' application for people who are destitute

January 2018

Who is this guidance for?

You should use this guidance if:

- You are a registered immigration advisor accredited at OISC Level 1 or above
- Your client has limited leave to remain on the basis of their family or private life (except under the 5 year parent or partner route)
- With no recourse to public funds
- They are facing homelessness or very serious poverty
- They want to apply to the Home Office to get access to mainstream welfare benefits and social housing

If you are the person with leave to remain and you are preparing this application yourself, please see our other guidance.

NOTE: Advising or assisting on Change of Conditions applications constitutes regulated immigration advice. If you are not a registered immigration adviser accredited at OISC Level 1 or above it is a criminal offence to advise on these applications.

What is the 'NRPF' condition?

Most people with limited leave to remain have a 'no recourse to public funds' or 'NRPF' condition attached to their leave. This means that the holder of leave will not be able to access:

- Most welfare benefits
- Social housing and homelessness support from the local council

A list of what counts as a public fund is found at Section 115 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 and paragraph 6 of the Immigration Rules.

It does not include education or NHS services and therefore the NRPF condition does not prevent people accessing these.

It also does not include local authority support such as support under S.17 Children's Act 1989.

What is a 'change of conditions' application?

In certain circumstances it is possible to apply for the NRPF condition to be removed after leave is granted. This is known as a 'change of conditions' application.

This application can only be made after leave to remain has been granted.

If successful, the NRPF condition will be removed for the length of the remaining leave, enabling the holder to access welfare benefits and housing assistance.

There is no Home Office fee to pay, so applications are free to submit.

There is no legal aid available for these applications.

Who can apply?

A person can only apply for a change of conditions if they have already been granted leave to remain in the UK under one of the following categories:

- As a partner or parent under paragraph EX.1 of Appendix FM (10 year route to settlement). This includes leave:
 - As a partner of a British or settled person
 - As a parent of a British child, or a child who has resided in the UK for at least 7 years
- 2. Private life (under paragraph 276 ADE of the Immigration Rules). This includes leave granted to persons:
 - Who have lived in the UK continuously for at least 20 years
 - To children (under 18) who have lived in the UK for at least 7 years and it would not be reasonable to expect them to leave the UK
 - To persons aged between 18 and 25 years old, who have lived in the UK for more than half their life
- Outside the rules on the basis of exceptional circumstances relating to family or private life.

NOTE: If a person has leave under Appendix FM other than under paragraph EX.1, applying for a change of conditions will alert to the Home Office to the fact that the person no longer meets the financial requirements and their leave may be curtailed.

What does the applicant need to show?

The applicant will also need to show that one of the following circumstances applies in their case:

Since being granted leave to remain their financial circumstances have changed and they:

- have become destitute; or
- there are now particularly compelling reasons relating to the welfare of a child on account of the parent's very low income; or
- there are now exceptional circumstances relating to their financial circumstances.

Alternatively, the applicant may show that one of the above circumstances applied at the time that the leave to remain decision was made, but no evidence of this was submitted to the Home Office.

What is 'destitution'?

The Home Office uses the definition of destitution set out in s.95(3) of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999:

s.95(3). This provides that a person is destitute if:

- (a) he does not have adequate accommodation or any means of obtaining it (whether or not his other essential living needs are met); or
- (b) he has adequate accommodation or the means of obtaining it, but cannot meet his other essential living needs

It is not necessary for a person to be street homeless for their accommodation to be 'inadequate.' What counts as 'adequate accommodation' will be different in different cases, for example a person may have a disability and require adaptions to be made to their home.

Accommodation or financial support provided under section 17 of the Children Act 1989 or the Care Act 2014 will not stop a person showing they are destitute, in fact it should help their case.

How to apply

In order to request a change of conditions the applicant must provide the following:

- 1. A completed 'request for a change of conditions of leave granted on the basis of private or family life' form. This can be downloaded from www.gov.uk;
- 2. Their existing Biometric Residence Card and Passport;
- 3. Documentary evidence that they meet the requirements of the policy granting recourse to public funds.

The address to send the application to is on the form. The application should be sent by recorded delivery.

Providing sufficient evidence that the requirements of the policy are met is key to preparing a successful change of conditions application.

If insufficient evidence is provided, the Home Office will refuse to change the conditions of leave.

Witness Statement

The applicant should provide a witness statement setting out the following information:

Remember that if successful the NRPF condition will only be removed for the duration of the period of leave to remain. If the applicant does not provide evidence that they are destitute at the time of their next immigration application for further leave, the NRPF condition will be imposed again.

There is no right of appeal against a refusal to change conditions. The only option is to submit a new application with further evidence, or if it appears that refusal decision was unlawfully made, to apply for Judicial Review.
